Just curious, AXTime shows like 20 entrants who DNS. People who got registered accidentally for Sunday? Or was there an incident that kept event from finishing? It /looks/ like there are results from some of these folks on the AAS page so maybe just an AXTime glitch?

My guess is which is based on what I noticed in the live timing program through out the day several people that were scheduled to run in the later run groups ran earlier out of group and their entry listings were not removed from their respective run group. My guess again is they decided to run earlier probably because the event was running very long into the day. I think the last run group finally completed around 6:30 or 7Pm or so.

Its just a guess on my part because I was not there.

Some of the names listed as DNS were registered but opted to leave before the PM run group started. The last run group finished around ~5:40 pm.

OK, thanks, I figured it was some sort of end of day issue but I was just curious.
