

---

Subject: How about a drifting section
Posted by BRIAN on Fri, 09 May 2008 04:38:51 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I am not into drifting but I see a few people on here whom are. Might be cool if they had their own section like the roadrace section.

---

---

Subject: Re: How about a drifting section
Posted by gotzoom? on Fri, 09 May 2008 18:22:20 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Request granted.

---

---

Subject: Re: How about a drifting section
Posted by Joe Weinstein on Fri, 09 May 2008 19:29:53 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

If I had a car that I was not concerned with over-revs with, and I had a place to do drifting, and had the tire budget, I would like to try drifting.

That being said, I have a concern that a drifting forum might tacitly imply that we accept/encourage drifting at autocross events. In a related post there have been discussions about what sort of drifting might be allowed at our autocrosses, but the general drifting goal would be disruptive to our events.

I know we have a rally forum, but there is no danger of rallyists thinking they can do that at an autocross.

Just a little concerned...
Joe

---

---

Subject: Re: How about a drifting section
Posted by gotzoom? on Fri, 09 May 2008 20:52:23 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I completely agree with that. The intent is not to encourage people to drift at autocross events, though. There are enough people that autocross and drift, that it makes sense to have a place for people to talk about drift events. Heck, they end up getting posted in the "off topic" forum already. I'm not aware of a drift forum that pertains specifically to the drift crowd in this area.

Let's see how it goes and if there are problems, I can change things around.

---