Hmm... that's an interesting idea. Know anyone that can give me the hook up on price? I'll look around and see if I can find a cheap place to have stuff like this made.

What would you guys like the design and color to be?

Something simple with the higher part blank and just BAAUTOX.COM on the bottom?

My only criteria is that it be non-cheezy looking. If I were to design it, I'd probably have the frame itself be black and the lettering be white. Some kind of neat looking font would be good as well, but I have no idea what is available on a license frame without it costing a lot of money. I think I'd probably have it say "www.baautox.com" at the top, and "Bay Area Autocross Forum" at the bottom. I also haven't an artistically creative bone in my body.

I had a custom one done for my girlfriend a couple years ago at a shop located at Pier 39 in SF. Cost was $10, wait time was like 5 minutes...

I guess I should work on this... Sorry, I've been busy with a million other things. I'll put some energy into this and a decal logo when I'm sitting around the house with nothing to do on Monday.

I haven't forgotten about it. I've been working on setting up a new server for the forum that will allow me to move to the latest release. Once that's done, I'll have cycles to take this project on.

I did a little research on this and most of the commercial outfits that make these for car dealerships, etc want a minimum quantity of 500 ordered. This is probably at least 10 years supply, so I need to find a smaller quantity producer. I sent an email to Ken, so hopefully we can put a small batch together.

You can always make one yourself here:
<http://www.billetframes.com>

Just text, no logos, but an assortment of available fonts, colors and frame styles. Seems possible you might be able to send them a logo if you asked.

I don't feel the SCCA logo makes sense, we cater to more than just SCCA

Maybe then BAAutoX on top a series of Logos on the bottom? SFR logo, AAX, Porsche and BMW groups? Who all do we cater too?
